

Newspaper reporter

The Columbian, Southwest Washington's news leader in print and online, seeks FT education reporter to join its metro news team. We're looking for a reporter who can deliver award-winning enterprise work while juggling routine beat coverage and online demands including social media. Preferred qualifications include a bachelor's degree and at least two years of daily newspaper experience, including a demonstrated ability to report and write enterprise and project stories. We value a constructive work culture.

We offer competitive pay and an excellent benefit package, which includes profit sharing/401(k). If you are looking for a challenge and want to work for one of the area's most progressive employers, please send a cover letter indicating your salary requirements and online experience, along with your résumé and work samples, to:
