

Newspaper database journalist

The Columbian, Southwest Washington's news leader in print and online, seeks FT database journalist to join its metro news team. This new specialized reporting position will be responsible for all facets of developing and reporting data-driven stories on multiple platforms. Demonstrated ability to use database and GIS software, statistics and higher mathematics as well as traditional journalism skills required. Must be adept at using social media in a journalistic fashion. A solid understanding of in-depth reporting is required. Preferred qualifications include a bachelor's degree and at least two years of daily newspaper experience. We value a constructive work culture.

We offer competitive pay and an excellent benefit package, which includes profit sharing/401(k). If you are looking for a challenge and want to work for one of the area's most progressive employers, please send a cover letter indicating your salary requirements and online experience, along with your résumé and work samples, to:

The Columbian, attn: Human Resources
P.O. Box 180, Vancouver, WA 98666
e-mail: jobs@columbian.com

Equal Opportunity Employer
Pre-employment drug screen is required.